Opening Remarks

Too Many People Looking Back

We'd rather look forward than look back, because as the great poet Howard Jones once said, "Things can only get better."

Speaking of which, how did this guy get passed over for the Nobel Prize for Literature in favor of Bob Dylan?

There were many highlights in 2016, not the least of which was the Beachcomber Music Awards in March, held for the second and final time at AJ's in Destin. Unless the Morgans buy them out.

The Destin Seafood Festival remains one of the highlights of early fall, stretching across the Destin Harbor and offering pedestrians the option of walking by the fishing boats or the video karaoke and wine ice cream kiosks.

The memorial service for musician Kenny Oliverio on Grayton Beach was a sad and beautiful occasion. I didn't recognize Bryan Kennedy without his hat. I ran into Kenny's Dread Clampitt bandmate Balder Saunders at Pandora's (does anyone remember Pandora's?) later on and couldn't get words out of my mouth.

The Franko Fest fundraiser for our longtime pal Franko "Washboard" Jackson at Trebeache in Santa Rosa Beach was a great coming together in support of the Beachcomber Music Hall of Famer's liver transplant. I was also very happy that I sold a copy of Washboard Jackson's Greatest Hits when I filled in for a young lady at the merchandise table.

I got to see and hear a few talented new musicians, catch up with some old favorites, even got to play a song with the great Hotel Oscar frontman Mose Wilson.

As Beachcomber Editor, I've taken advantage of the opportunity to put Juan Francisco Adaro on our cover as often as possible. He and Brooke just had a baby, so stop by his Grayton Beach gallery and spend lots of money. And if you're an artist not currently on our radar, get in Beachcomber Editor Chris Manson and Beachcomber Publisher Charles Morgan III enjoy the Destin Christmas Parade. Charles has served as Grand Marshal on several occasions, while Chris never has and will probably never be asked to.

Paula Hilton ("The Bucket List"), a California hippie at heart, was born to act, sing, write and paint. Currently, she's doing none of these.

Nikki Hedrick ("Gaming—Old Is New Again and Hard to Find") will be playing assistant to 5 Star Event Photography for their Portraits with Santa event and looks forward to "talking" with Santa to find out if she can bribe her way off the naughty list.

Joni Williams ("Seventeen Places to Check Out While You Ring in '17") earned her only science fair ribbon in the seventh grade by feeding nothing but beer to a plant. As a teenager she would often try to get on Santa's good list by leaving him cookies and beer instead of milk.

Kellyanne Bartleson (Family-Friendly Events) is the creator of EmeraldCoastKids.org, a comprehensive online resource guide for all things kids, teens and families in Walton and Okaloosa counties.

touch and we'll try and work you in for 2017.

Best of all, I was able to kick a habit that had long been weighing me down and putting enormous strain on my health. Yes, I finally quit Facebook.

Fifteen years in, this publication is still going strong. And come the New Year, it's going to be even greater. Like, Howard Jones great.

YOUR THOUGHTS AND COMMENTS

I wanted to thank you for the wonderful review of Ye Olde Brothers Brewery ("Wanna Know a Secret?" by Joni Williams, Dec. 1-14 Beachcomber). I'm the Brewmaster, and it humbled me to receive such high praise. I hope you come back soon, as we have the Imperial Maple Porter and Milk Chocolate Cherry Stout now on draft. We are also having a dessert beer pairing on Dec. 20.

- Bill Bunning, Navarre

Thank you for publishing "Trump's Illegal Voters Lie Is Just a Distraction" (by syndicated columnist Rex Huppke, Dec. 1-14 Beachcomber). What has been most bewildering about our debacle of an election is the failure of many Americans to thoughtfully consider, research and evaluate the gross misrepresentations and outright lies that have bombarded them daily.

At one time, our educational institutions mandated courses in American government. We should resume that, and add a required course on understanding propaganda and marketing strategies.

Informed judgments based on facts cannot be made if Americans are unable or unwilling to do their homework.

The Florida Lottery recently announced that Patricia Sowell of Fort Walton Beach claimed a top prize in the $5,000,000 Gold Rush Doubler Scratch-Off game at Florida Lottery Headquarters in Tallahassee. She chose to receive her winnings as a one-time, lump-sum payment of $3,725,000.

Sowell purchased her winning ticket from Circle K, located at 65 Miracle Street Parkway Southeast in Fort Walton Beach. The retailer will receive a $10,000 bonus commission for selling the winning Scratch-Off ticket.

The $20 game features six top prizes of $5 million, 30 prizes of $1 million, and more than $752 million in total cash prizes. This game offers more than 16.8 million winning tickets, and overall odds of winning are one in 2.99.

Scratch-Off games are an important part of the Lottery's portfolio of games, comprising approximately 65 percent of ticket sales and generating more than $734 million for the Educational Enhancement Trust Fund (EETF) in fiscal year 2015-16.

Our great, great friend Patricia Sowell from Fort Walton Beach.

Seagrove Beach

30A TV aired the 2nd Annual Emerald Coast Children's Advocacy Center (ECCAC) Telethon broadcasting live last week from 723 Whiskey Bravo in Seagrove Beach. The telethon benefited the two ECCAC locations in Niceville and the Pierce Family Children's Advocacy Center in DeFuniak Springs.

Beachcomber Music Award winner David Seering (Best Male Vocalist, 2008-09) hosted the telethon. He was particularly moved interviewing young Isabella Rose, who had a life altering experience when she was seven and her family turned to ECCAC for help.

Isabella is now a vibrant 13-year-old who touts her positive and helpful experience with ECCAC. She's quite the singer, too. In fact, Seering asked her to sing on the telethon, which she very capably did. He also asked her to perform a song with him at ECCAC's March 11 annual signature fundraising gala, and she agreed.

"I want to bring awareness and let people know I am in a good place with my past because of what ECCAC did for me and my family," said Isabella.

"It's children like Isabella who shine a light in our hearts—it is why we do what we do," said ECCAC CEO Julie Hurst. "To see how far she has come reinforces the work of our therapists, law enforcement and others that help to make a difference in the lives of children who have experienced a challenging time in their lives. Our thanks go to all the telethon viewers and their donations to support the center and our kids."

With the purpose of creating awareness and raising funds for ECCAC, the telethon featured interviews with locals, entertainment, and information about how viewers can make a difference. ECCAC's board of directors were on hand answering phones and taking donations.

In the spirit of giving, 723 Whiskey Bravo owners Skip and Victoria Moore donated $1,000 of the restaurant's profits the day of the telethon for the cause. Breaking last year's amount raised, the telethon night raised over $31,000, which included a generous donation of $25,000 from the Walton County Sheriff's Department.

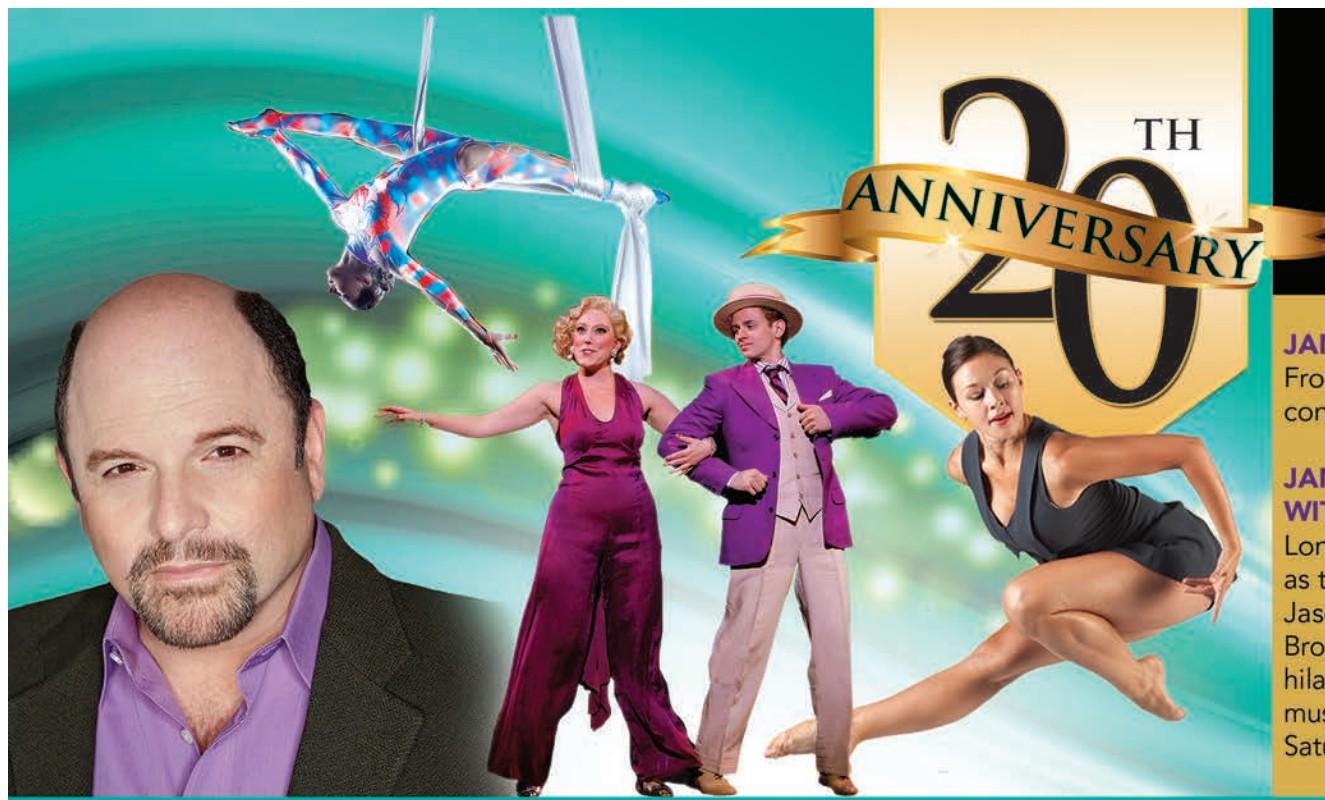

Donations are still being accepted, the telethon will continue to be re-broadcast periodically through February and can be seen any time in its entirety on 30A TV's website. Sponsors of the telethon were the Freeport Kiwanis, Silver Sands Premium Outlets, Julie Hurst, Emerald Coast Compounding Pharmacy and Insurance Zone.

Learn more at eccac.org.

Why Won't Florida Say What's in Pitbull's Secret File?

By Carl Hiaasen, Tribune Content Agency

Somewhere in Tallahassee, locked securely inside a government office, is an explosive, top-secret file that only a few select operatives have ever seen. It's so sensitive that even lawmakers haven't been allowed to peek at it.

These protected documents have nothing to do with an imminent ISIS threat, the Zika outbreak or the alarming rise in sea levels in Florida.

The subject of the confidential file is a 35-year-old man named Armando Christian Perez. Otherwise known as Pitbull, Mr. 305 himself.

Last year a state agency, Visit Florida, hired Pitbull to do some tourism promotion. Because the hip-hop star was paid with public funds, many people reasonably assumed that the details of his deal would be openly disclosed.

The state refused. Visit Florida CEO Will Seccombe stated that Pitbull's contract included "proprietary trade information" and therefore was exempt from a public-records request. Pitbull's contract ended in June, but the file remains unpublished to this day.

It's significant as part of a policy of secrecy that has annoyed incoming House Speaker Richard Corcoran, a fiscal conservative who wants to slash Visit Florida's funding. One touchy issue is how the agency spends state money.

Since 2009, Visit Florida's annual budget has swollen 169 percent, from roughly $29 million to $78 million.

In addition to recruiting Pitbull, Visit Florida sponsors a Le Mans racecar team and a soccer squad in England. The benefits to tourism that flow from such exotic marketing are difficult to quantify.

In August, Visit Florida made an exception to its closed-book ways by revealing that, for the second straight year, it has spent $1.25 million to put its logo on soccer jerseys worn by the Fulham Football Club in London.

What's the connection to Florida? The owner of the Fulham soccer team is Shad Khan, a major donor to Gov. Rick Scott. Khan, who also owns the Jacksonville Jaguars, lives in Naples. Tourism officials say he gave them a really good deal on the logos. Maybe British soccer fans will flood to South Beach because of those enchanting jerseys, or maybe they'll come for the same simple reason that other tourists do—to escape the cold and the rain.

Maybe even more of them would come if we could persuade Pitbull to drive a Florida racecar around a soccer field a dozen times. It's impossible to know the true value of such promotions if we can't find out what they cost.

The governor insists all the big spending is paying off. Tourism jumped about 29 percent from 2009 to 2016, up from 82 million visitors a year to about 106 million. This rebound has coincided with the steady recovery of the U.S. economy, though Scott gives most of the credit to Visit Florida. But like another of his expensive pet projects—Enterprise

Florida, with its ludicrous giveaway incentives to lure corporations—Visit Florida is facing fire in the Legislature.

Nobody's been able to get a line-by-line accounting of how the tourism agency allocates its hefty budget. An audit initiated by the governor found no wrongdoing, but it urged Visit Florida to operate more transparently.

The deal with Pitbull got lots of attention because, well, it was Pitbull—and also because the terms were kept quiet. Florida has hired celebrities before, but taxpayers knew how much money was being shelled out.

In the late 1970s, the citrus commission was paying Anita Bryant $100,000 to sing the glories of orange juice (she lost the gig after campaigning to repeal a Miami-Dade gay-rights law). In 1994, the state cut a controversial $1 million deal with Rush Limbaugh to rhapsodize about OJ on his radio show (he lost the gig after juice sales stalled).

In Their Own Words... Local Color Artists

We are a group of inventive creators at the beginning of our artistic journey, learning from one another.

On Fridays, we come together to provide a supportive atmosphere for artists of multiple genres to collaborate and broaden their horizons.

We enjoy the process of creating in a casual and supportive setting where there is no instruction, just an atmosphere of collegiality and sharing.

Consider joining us on Fridays from 9 a.m. to noon in the back room of the Walton County Coastal Branch

Library in Santa Rosa Beach, and enjoy the freedom of creating art as you follow your own whims and desires.

All are welcome to participate at no expense, and in whatever way fits your schedule.

The Beat Profiles* — James Garrett

HOME: Branson, Missouri. Originally from Los Angeles.

AGE: Old enough to not tell anybody.

PROFESSION: Performer-producer.

HOBBIES: Riding Harley-Davidson motorcycles with my dad. Drawing and painting.

LAST BOOK I READ: Robert Redford: The Biography by Michael Feeney Callan (2012). It's a great book. I read a lot of biographies about people of distinction, fun to read about how they got to where they are. I read about all kinds of people but mostly people in my business, show business.

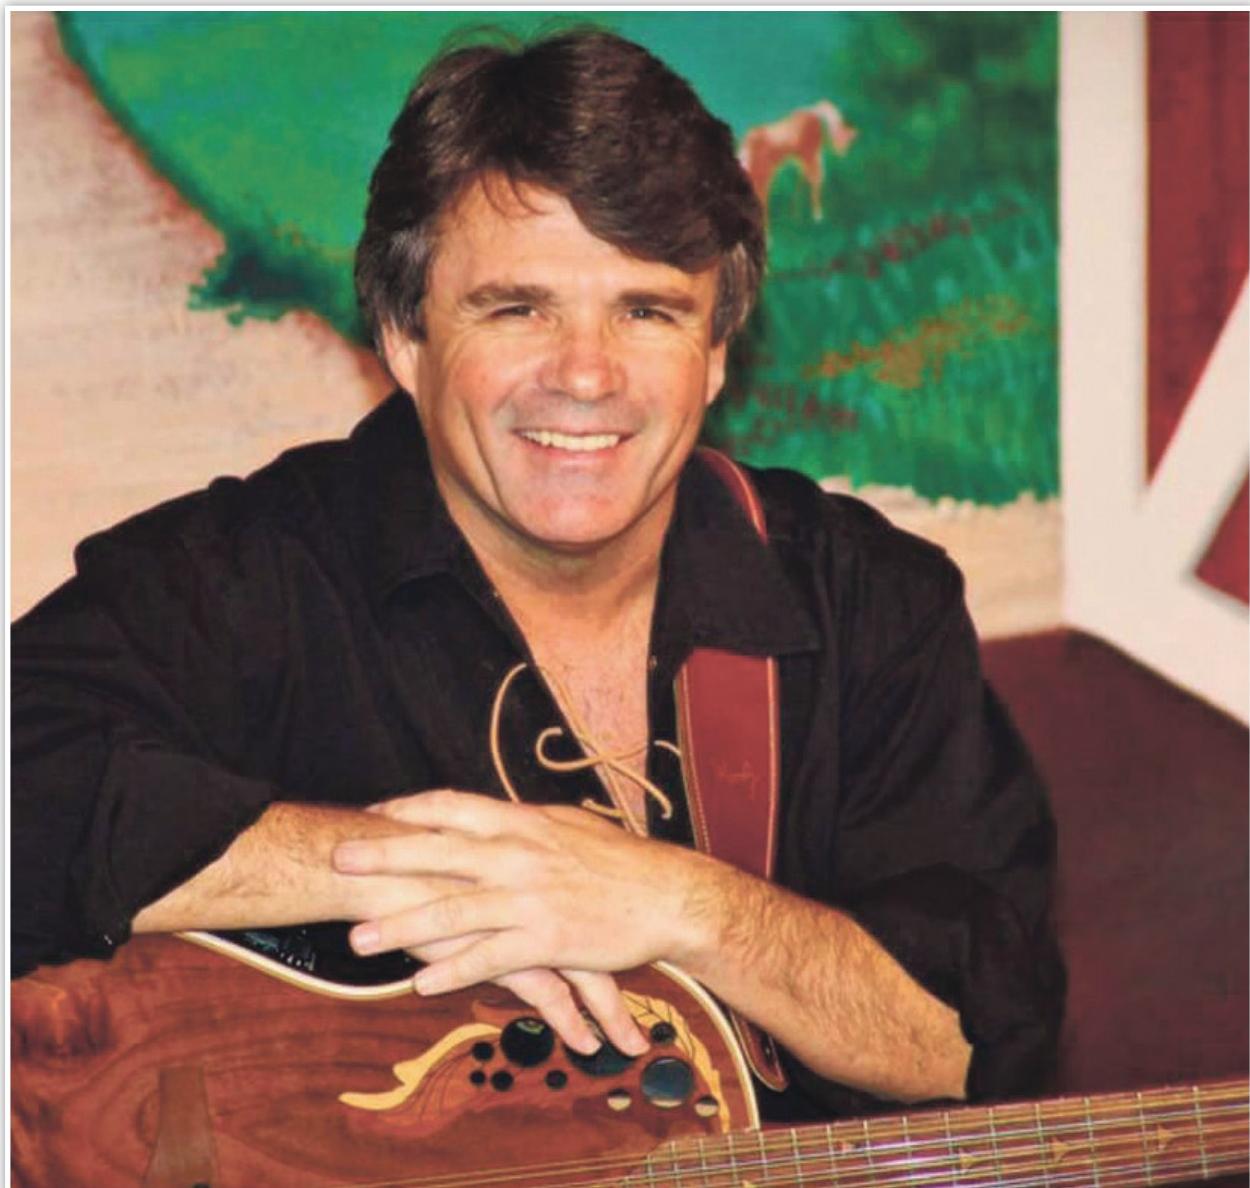

RECENT ACCOMPLISHMENTS: Winning the Terry Beene Show of the Year award in Branson, Missouri for the John Denver Tribute Show that I'm doing in Destin. We're calling it the Rocky Mountain Christmas show. It's an acoustic show with guitar, bass, fiddle and mandolin—and an Ozark Mountain hammer dulcimer, the same lineup John had when he first started touring. It will be mostly the John Denver hits—he had quite a few—sprinkled with Christmas songs that John did. I knew John, and I share stories behind the songs. My personal connection and insights have kept this show going for 10 years.

QUOTE: I can't tell you who said it, but... "Success is just an opportunity given to you by someone who believes in you."

PROFILE: I auditioned with a bluegrass band in Silver Dollar City in Branson when I was about 17. Singing and acoustic guitar—a balladeer, like John Denver was. After that, I opened shows for famous people and ended up getting a gig with the Kendalls ("Heaven's Just a Sin Away"). In fact, we had a hit on the country charts with John's "Leaving on a Jet Plane." The Kendalls were Royce and his daughter Jeannie. When Royce passed away in 1998, she asked me to sing her dad's parts, which was a real honor.

I've been based in Branson mostly, aside from touring. I decided to do a show in Branson so I wouldn't have to travel so much. I went into the only IMAX theater in Branson and gave the manager a CD of me singing John Denver songs, and three days later he offered me the opportunity to produce the show. In 10 years, we've won 18 awards, so that's a pretty good run. The beauty of Branson is getting off the tour bus. We get about eight million visitors every year. If you have a good show, you'll sell tickets. Which I hope to do in Destin!

When you're singing and touring with people who have hit records, you get to go backstage and hang out with people. I never did any shows with John, but when he was in the vicinity, I met him and we had a friendship over the years. My favorite songs are the ones that weren't hits—turns out those were John's favorites, too—and, of course, "Take Me Home, Country Roads," "Rocky Mountain High," "Annie's Song." I've done these songs six days a week for nine months.

I asked John if he ever got tired of singing "Rocky Mountain High." And he said, "The audience makes it brand new every time you sing it." That's so true.

John influenced maybe two thirds of the people in Nashville now making records. He had a huge influence on country, folk...he was lots of things. It's amazing to be able to cross those genres. He was all over the place.

Childish Gambino

Awaken, My Love!

Glassnote Records

Jackson, Ray Brown, Philly Joe Jones, et.al.), this remastered recording of a "lost" 1980 Montreal tribute to Parker (who died in 1955) is jazz history. Once heard only as a bootleg LP, this version (based on rediscovered tapes) includes—wait, there's more!—two bonus tracks. Historical interest aside, these guys are the Washingtons and Jeffersons of our Jazz Republic. Pay close attention to Gillespie on "Stardust." Bird Lives, indeed.

- Bruce Collier

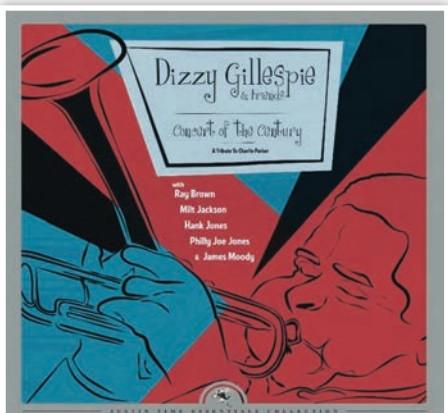

A surprising, sharp change in direction and a bold move for Childish Gambino that has yielded an amazing record. So get funky, be daring, and give this a well-deserved chance. It's innovative and retro in the same beat, a beautiful glimpse at a transitional period for a well-loved artist.

Dizzy Gillespie & Friends

Concert of the Century – A Tribute to Charlie Parker

Even if you don't like Gillespie or Parker, this album is one of those that you at least gotta hear once. Aside from the Olympian roster (Gillespie, Milt

The Killers
Don't Waste Your Wishes

Island

Due to its lack of traditional holiday jingles, you may not realize this is a Christmas album right away. But you will know it's the Killers. That said, though their unique new wave sound is instantly recognizable on most tracks, the band dabbles in other genres, at one point almost crossing the line into country. The album, primarily a collection of already-released Killers holiday songs, hosts an impressive guest list ranging from Elton John to Dawes and Jimmy Kimmel. And the one new track is actually an old classic—"I'll Be Home For Christmas" with a spoken-word intro by Brandon Flowers. The holiday music is great, but it's even better having a reason to listen to the Killers again.

Metallica

Hardwired...to Self-Destruct

Blackened

Love them or hate them, Metallica helped bring an entire movement to life. Lately, they have been more revered for their past laurels than recent releases. Hardwired... should help shift that. It returns the band to a more conventional version of themselves. It's easy to assume that this record is an attempt to reclaim relevancy in an ever-changing music industry, but whatever the influence for a more straightforward, heavy album might be, it's a welcome addition to Metallica's classic catalog. The deluxe three-disc version is worth the cost.

- Nikki Hedrick

The Rolling Stones

Blue & Lonesome

Interscope

It's no secret the Stones have long been influenced by blues music. For their 25th studio album they remind us all how much the style shaped them by covering a dozen heartfelt tunes. It's full of energy, and swaggering fun. It's not a groundbreaking Stones album, but a lively listen that shines a light on some blues names too often overlooked.

- Nikki Hedrick

Various Artists

Jazz Loves Disney

Decca

Jamie Cullum, Melody Gardot, Stacey Kent, Nikki Yanofsky, the Hot Sardines,

JAZZ loves DISNEY

Gregory Porter, China Moses and assorted other artists clubbed together to record this baker's dozen of well-known tunes from Disney movies, in a variety of arrangements. The song list ranges from the classics ("When You Wish Upon a Star") to more contemporary stuff ("Let it Go"). It's high quality, though standard stuff mostly, kind of like the annual Christmas albums that all singers were once required to release. There are a few interesting tracks, though, including "Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo" and "Some Day My Prince Will Come" rendered in French.

Nikki Hedrick's Favorite Live Music Moments of 2016

"Life can become hectic, and it's hard to do everything we would like to do," says our fearless music correspondent. "Live music can remind us to slow down and let our hair down, and how at the end of the day, we are all very much alike. These are just small windows into why I can't imagine life without live music."

Purple & Paisley

The Stage Northside, Pensacola

After Prince's death, a group of area musicians wanted to come together and do something special in honor of him. It was a selfless endeavor that raised money for local music education and happened to fall right before my birthday. It was a heck of a party.

Velcro Pygmies

Tailfins, Destin

Velcro Pygmies have been around for a nice while—a band that is all about being a bit outrageous and having a good time. This year, tragedy came when bassist Jacob Sanders (24) and his brother Jeremiah (29) passed away after a fishing accident that required extensive searching along the Tennessee River.

This was the Pygmies' first time back. Former member Jason "Dep" Reed (pictured) picked his bass back up so the band could continue until a new fulltime member was named. We all mourned and laughed together and celebrated the Sanders brothers.

James "Big Lo" Lopez

Selevan Palafox, Pensacola

Big Lo didn't just release an album, he threw an insanely classy and fun private event to mark the occasion. With drinks and food flowing, it was a personal reminder of how breaking the mold and tackling life from a different angle can yield exceptional results. The night closed with a high energy performance and good vibes all around.

Franko Fest

Trebeache, Santa Rosa Beach

An evening to help Beachcomber Music Awards Hall of Famer Franko "Washboard" Jackson raise funds and meet additional criteria for a liver transplant. An outpouring of love, music and everything that makes me proud to call this community home.

New Earth Army

Imogene Theatre, Milton

This show marked one of Carly Foster's last with the band, one of those benchmarks that marks our music scene's growth and changes. A few months later, I was at Melissa Joiner's first official gig as the band's new lead singer. Life is funny that way.

All About Us – What We're Looking Forward to 2017

BRUCE COLLIER

Beachcomber Contributing Editor

Despite the dire predictions and/or wild optimism of my friends both in person and on social media, I intend to keep my own hopes alive in the way I have since I became a husband and a father.

There are people in this world for whom I have actual responsibility, there are people I love, and there are people I try hard to wish well. As long as I keep those priorities straight, everything else should fall into place—in 2017, and all the years to follow.

On a less lofty note, I expect my daughter Grace to move closer to being renamed the Tall Diner.

KAY PHELAN

Beachcomberland's Reigning PR Queen
I am looking forward to sharing yet another year of amazing memories with my precious five grandchildren—under the age of nine, including 20-month-old twins—who live in Atlanta but come with my son and daughter-in-law to “Gramma Kay’s at the Beach” throughout the year.

As well, I will enjoy doing PR work and PRtography for my clients and working with a number of the wonderful nonprofit organizations that do so much in our community for so many. Here’s to peace, harmony and good health in 2017.

Kay Phelan's lovely family, headed for the beaches.

JILL TANNER

A New York vacation.

NIKKI HEDRICK

Beachcomber Contributing Writer/Photographer

New opportunities and experiences. Some big, scary things are bubbling, and hopefully 2017 will be the year that they can exist in the real world.

SYLVIA BRYAN

Assistant Director, Mattie Kelly Arts Center, Northwest Florida State College

Having been involved with the grand opening of the Arts Center in 1997 and promoting the venue's cultural arts programs for more than a decade, I look forward to the 20th anniversary of the Mattie Kelly Arts Center on January 21.

The center is such a great resource the college offers our community, and I'm so proud to be a part of it.

NATALIE DAVIS

Lead Adoption Coordinator, Alaqua Animal Refuge

In 2017, I am most looking forward to moving to our new property in Bruce. Also, giving animals a second chance by helping them find the best possible adopters.

NONIE MAINES

Nonie's Ark Animal Encounters

My 20th anniversary for Nonie's Ark.

DANNICA LOWERY

Beachcomber Music Award Winner (Among Other Things)

What I'm looking forward to most in 2017 is the unknown. I'm excited about all of the new adventures and opportunities that are sure to present themselves in the most unlikely of ways.

Dannica Lowery ponders what 2017 will bring.

CHATHAM MORGAN

Destin City Council

Celebrating my second wedding anniversary in January and my daughter's first birthday in October, and all the moments shared with them in between. Taking my beagles on more walks. Reading good books. Catching big Cobia in the spring. Passing an effective tree ordinance at City Hall to prohibit the clear cutting of lots around town. I'm a simple man.

JOE FINGAS

Bluesman Extraordinaire

Take your pick. In 2017, I'm looking forward to (1) piano lessons, (2) a return to my amateur boxing career, (3) going back to Cali, (4) gender reassignment surgery to become Bubba McQueen Blues Diva, (5) Dec. 31, 2017.

Ah, Spa... 15 Questions for Kim DeOrsey

By Zandra Wolfgram

Does spending your day lounging in a spa sanctuary in the heart of a luxury hotel sound like a dream job to you? We sat down with one of the country's most sought after spa experts to get to know her, hear all about the new Salamander Spa at the Henderson in Destin, and...discover the secret to youth.

Well, we can't tell you everything, but here are 15 things we can share from our time spent with knowledgeable, kinetic and kindhearted Kim DeOrsey.

1. You are a powerhouse in the spa industry, and we are fortunate to have you here on the Emerald Coast. What are some highlights of your career?

PGA National Resort & Spa in Palm Beach Gardens, because it set the stage for other resort spas. The Club at Ibis in West Palm Beach, which was a $33 million capital project that brought wellness into a residential spa, and then at the Omphoy Ocean Resort & Spa in Palm Beach, which only had three treatment rooms, but was voted No. 1 Resort Spa in the United States by Condé Nast Traveler magazine.

2. You moved here for this job. How do you like Destin so far?

I love the family-friendly aspect of the Destin community. As a mom of three kids, it's been nice and rewarding for all of us. My son Remington is eight and he has been traveling the South for soccer and lacrosse. My daughter Elle is 10 and she has already danced a solo in one recital that took her to Mississippi. My son Tyler is college age, and we've been able to get out on the water boating. So the sports and arts, in particular, have been wonderful and my kids are thriving.

3. What drew you to the health and wellness field?

I was always drawn to health and wellness, especially nutrition and working out since I was in high school. At 15, I was teaching gymnastics to little kids. So, taking care of yourself and being mindful was important to me at a fairly young age.

4. Did you grow up in a healthy household?

Yes, my grandmother Irene lived to be 103, and not long before she passed away she was still playing tennis and doing Yoga. She never mixed proteins and carbs and ate lots of fruits. She always took good care of her skin. She took me to Lancome store for makeup and taught me how to take care of my skin.

5. You are of the belief that wellness is a lifestyle. How so?

It's definitely a lifestyle. When my kids were young, it was just a part of how we lived. If they were upset, it was me telling them "use your breathing." Now my kids are into activities and athletics, so they have grown up understanding how important it is to balance the body with sleep, eating healthy, and not over scheduling.

6. How do you incorporate your wellness philosophy at Salamander Spa?

We have developed an entire wellness program that begins with our sleeping rooms. We created a wellness crate that contains everything you need to enjoy the spa and fitness center including a wellness mat. Instead of chips and sweets, we have a wellbeing bar. You can do an eye mask, a soak in the tub or enjoy a nourishing spirulina exfoliating mask. We even have a journal so you can reflect and write down your thoughts and relax your mind. You've heard of a Wake Up call, we have a Turn Down call. We call our guests with a gentle reminder to unplug, detach and focus on themselves for a good night's rest.

7. What are some current wellness trends you are embracing at Salamander?

One is just slowing down and being mindful to not be so rushed. Another is education, which comes in the format of wellness workshops. We have wellness cards for our guest to take home that include a recipe with a Salamander Spa ingredient. For example, we have one for Lavender Truffles. It's a chocolate truffle made with lavender and food grade-sea salt. Another big trend is getting outside more, so when you have a spa appointment we'll encourage you to enjoy a bike ride or paddle boarding as part of your time at the Henderson.

8. What is the Salamander sound bowl all about?

Music is a tool to use to relax, and we're incorporating sound therapy as well. Here at Salamander, we embrace the spa experience upon arrival. We have a hammered metal bowl with a soft mallet, we ding it and guest hover over it and feel that vibration. It's a singing bowl and it's quite powerful for some. It's important to us that our guests begin their wellness experience prior to even going into the treatment room.

9. What's the most popular spa treatment?

The aromatherapy massage. You get to customize it by choosing between lavender, neroli or ginger. The fragrance you are drawn to is what your body needs the most.

10. Why should we "ask the experts"?

People are always looking to take care of themselves and there are so many things to use. Some work and some don't. As a professional and as a world-class resort, we align with providers who are educated and best in class. We search out what our clients and guests should spend their money on, educate them on the trends, and customize regimens that work for them and their skin.

11. Tell us how to make the most of our time at the spa.

When you schedule, break up your services so they are not back-to-back. Arrive early, have a cup of tea and unwind. Come prepared to enjoy the wet area. We have a whirlpool, a steam room and an experiential shower with three cycles—tropical rainforest, arctic blast and detoxifying. And leave plenty of time for the pool and beach...your mind needs time to unwind and embrace what just happened.

12. You are a professional in a busy hotel and a single mother of three. What's your secret?

You just have to make it happen. Today, I got up at 5 a.m. and hit the gym. I try to do that three mornings a week. With my kids, it's getting up and going outside for a hike. I work, but we have dinner as a family. I fit it in.

13. What is your advice to make this year the best year yet?

I want everyone to get out there with their families to ride a bike, and enjoy what the Emerald Coast has to offer. Put your feet in the sand more and be more playful.

14. What's unique to the Henderson Salamander Spa?

We have specially equipped spa guest rooms, a Gulf view, and a bank of elevators that takes our guests from the guest rooms right to the spa.

15. What does the Salamander signify?

It's so inspirational. Our name stands for beauty, strength and courage, and that is something each of us wish we had each and every day. So it's also about each of our personal stories. Every day we strive for that, and we're here to help everyone be the best that they can be.

GRACE Rides – A Love for Horses and Special People

By Samantha Lambert

Melissa Wood sits straight up in the saddle as she rides around the ring on Levi. Two side-walkers and a lead walker guide her and Levi gently through their paces. Melissa gives the commands to halt and go. The whole time she is riding, there is a huge smile on her face. That is the beauty of GRACE Rides, a therapeutic riding program in Niceville for individuals with special needs.

GRACE Rides started in 2008 working out of the Oak Heaven Stables equestrian facility in Niceville. The goal was to continue the good work of RACE (Riding for Adults and Children with Exceptionalities), Okaloosa County's first therapeutic riding program. RACE was a program that operated in Baker from 1996 to 2006 and was run by volunteers.

Sherry Hall and her husband Steve founded GRACE Rides. Sherry grew up in Northwest Florida on a working farm with horses. She also gained knowledge of special needs students when she was young by volunteering in special education classes taught by her mother. She graduated from Florida State University in 1982 with degrees in both Clinical Psychology and Rehabilitation Counseling/Education. She also received a Juris Doctorate degree from FSU in 1986. Sherry has devoted herself full-time to GRACE Rides since 2010.

GRACE Rides focuses primarily on Equine-Assisted Activities and Therapies (EATT) along with Equine-Assisted Learning (EAL). GRACE Rides helps individuals who are autistic, have Down syndrome, Cerebral Palsy, ADD/ADHD, traumatic brain injuries, and more. The rhythmic nature of the horse's gait and the animal's body heat provide a natural vehicle for physical therapy by loosening tight muscles, helping to strengthen the rider's muscle tone, and encouraging digestion and circulation. All of this helps to improve the lives and community of each of the program participants, each of their family members, each of the service horses, and each of the volunteers.

GRACE Rides incorporates horse rescue, rehabilitation, and retirement to provide therapeutic riding, equine assisted activities, and horsemanship programs to individuals with special needs. The horses vary in size from small to large, and also vary in movement. Each horse has been tested vigorously prior to acceptance into the program to ensure that their talents and dispositions are a good match for the program participants.

As the riders interact with the horses they develop respect and love for the animals. Because horses require a great deal of attention, the riders bond quickly with them as they groom, feed and ride them. They develop responsibility, patience and compassion as they care for the horses.

Program participant Melissa Wood is 24 and has a brain injury. She started coming to GRACE Rides about eight years ago. "Melissa loves riding," says mom Kim. "It helps her balance and strengthens her core. She is not afraid of the horses at all and wants to ride."

Nathan Taylor started coming to GRACE Rides about a month ago. He is 16 and has Down syndrome. Today he is riding Sonny. "This program gives Nathan something to look forward to," says his mother Denise. "He really enjoys it. It has helped him with his speech as well by giving commands to the horse. He talks about it at school to the other students."

Presently GRACE Rides serves an average of 35 riders a week and has a waiting list. The areas served are from Pensacola to Crestview and Baker and out to South Walton. All program participants are encouraged to donate toward the cost of operations if they are able to, but no rider is turned away due to lack of financial resources. GRACE Rides depends on the support of individuals and organizations in the community who give of their time, money and resources.

"There are so many blessings with what we do," says Hall. "The kids thrive and benefit with daily living skills. Plus, we give our horses—who are show horses who have aged out—a second chance."

GRACE Rides has many volunteers who help out assisting riders, keeping the facility running smoothly and helping with daily horse pampering. The GRACE Rides family also includes volunteers Anne Jennette, who has nearly completed her PATH Certification (the Professional Association of Therapeutic Horsemanship International); and Trisha Everton, who has her PATH certification.

Last month, ground was broken for a new facility on 40 acres in DeFuniak Springs, which will double the amount of individuals who can be served. There will be six tacking and grooming bays for participants to work with the horses inside the barn. In Phase 1, the barn, arena and sensory arena will be built. In Phase 2, a cover for the arena will be built. In Phase 3, an auditorium, cafeteria and camp cabins will be built.

Future plans also include a program for military veterans dealing with PTSD and a wellness program for active duty military returning from deployment. GRACE Rides also hope to set up a work study program with the ARC, a nonprofit that assists people with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

Cayce Collins, Fashionista

Interviewed by Charles Morgan III

Cayce Collins is busy. She's the kind of person who has more energy than people are supposed to have. In addition to raising a family and training a devoted crowd of people to become more fit, Collins is carving out an unusual career in our tourist-driven area. She designs swimsuits.

How did you get here?

My family moved to Destin when I was two years old, and I have lived in the area for most of my life. I attended Choctawhatchee High School where my mom is a teacher. I went to college in Tallahassee at Florida State. After college, I moved to Colorado where I did a short internship and skied a lot.

I returned to Destin in 2003, where I met and married my musician husband, Dan. We have three children—Ashton (my stepson) is 13, Clara is nine, and Murphy is five.

What have you been doing since you moved back here for good?

I have been a tutor and I've given art lessons to children. Most recently, I have tapped into my zeal for fitness and become a group fitness instructor. Teaching fitness has been incredibly fulfilling. Partnering with clients to set and surpass individual goals is rewarding. I also believe instructing fitness classes supplements my swimwear designs by teaching women to feel confident and strong in whatever shape body they live in.

I know a bunch of people—several of my family members—who stumble to your fitness class way too early in the morning. They all love it. It's a boot camp style workout. We utilize repetitive lifting of light weights, Yoga, Pilates, and cardio/endurance exercises. I keep it interesting by mixing things up.

How does one design swimsuits?

The inspiration is architectural in nature. A lot of it has to do with the structure of the female body. That drives my creativity.

Are the swimsuits designed for six-foot-tall Victoria's Secret models?

I'm a mom—I've delivered two children. At first I designed for skinny models. Now I'm more creative, and I've found success by creating things that I know I would wear.

How are they produced?

I used to make a digitized pattern and would send it overseas for production. Now I'm looking for domestic companies to work with. I've been a seamstress all my life, and I have others who help with the process.

Is this a good area to be a clothing designer? Fashion can start anywhere. The biggest market for swimwear is in Miami. The details of production are intimidating. But I have been so humbled by the progress I've made and the feedback I have received over the past few years.

I was invited to show a collection at South Walton Fashion Week in October 2016, and was named a finalist out of 12 established designers. I also showed collections at SWFW in 2013 and 2015. I had a swimsuit on the cover of VIE Magazine in the summer of 2016 and an article in the Northwest Florida Daily News in November of 2016.

It's Christmas. People have to buy gifts. How can someone get one of your swimsuits?

Absolutely on Music—Conversations with Seiji Ozawa

Alfred A. Knopf

Best-selling Japanese novelist and nonfiction writer Murakami is also a music buff and a pal of legendary conductor Seiji Ozawa. He recorded a series of conversations with Ozawa, then set them down in book form (actually more in play form). The dialogue starts off with some rather esoteric musical disquisitions, but if you stick with it you'll be glad you did. Especially good are the parts where Ozawa talks about his education and apprenticeship with guys like Leonard Bernstein, Herbert von Karajan, Eugene Ormandy and other baton-wielding musical titans. Ozawa comes off as a nice guy, modest and good humored.

EDITOR'S PICKS - BOOKS OF THE YEAR

Pop Superstars on Audio, Narrating Their Stories. Bruce Springsteen's Born to Run may be the man's most intimate recording since 1982's Nebraska. It's also his longest, clocking in at around 18 hours, but you won't notice as you take the long way home just to get to the end of another thrilling chapter. Phil Collins' Not Dead Yet: The Memoir seems minor by comparison, but the ex-Genesis singer and drummer has retained the knack for compelling storytelling.

Can I also mention Amy Schumer's The Girl With the Lower Back Tattoo, since she's the reigning rock star of the comedy world?

The Promise Falls Tourist Development People Have Their Work Cut Out for Them. Linwood Barclay published two great works of fiction this year—Far from True and The Twenty-Three. The latter sort of ties everything up but leaves you wanting more. Thank God the author is so prolific.

That's Why They Call Him the Master. Stephen King's End of Watch, the superb finale to his Mr.

Series Highlights. Ace Atkins' Robert B. Parker's Slow Burn, the writer's best take on Spenser yet, left the door wide open for some exciting follow-up developments. Michael Connelly's LAPD detective Harry Bosch, on the heels of the excellent second season of the Amazon TV series, took on two pulse-pounding cases in The Wrong Side of Goodbye. And Lee Child's latest Jack Reacher adventure, Night School, took readers back to our hero's Army days.

So Long, 2016 – The Year in Dining (and Drinking)

It's been a more varied year in dining, one with fewer restaurants than I can recall since I began writing this column. My list of dining establishments tops out at 16—Charlie's Burger Bar, Tommy Mattonie's, Airstream Row at Seaside (I counted it as one, since the Tiny Diner and I pieced together a progressive lunch there in February), La Paz, Chanticleer Eatery and Bakery, Destin Diner, Brotula's, LuLu's, Trebeache, Stewby's, Zesty Baguette Bistro, McGuire's Sushi, Mother Earth's Cafe, Boshamps, Burrito del Sol, and Chiringo Grayton Beach.

My Just the Liquor Talking column this year touched on gin, mezcal, blended Scotch, Florida distilled spirits, bourbons for under $20, Canadian whisky, and Armagnac (in this issue). Research, as always, is arduous, but the column has opened my eyes to some spirits I might otherwise have ignored.

I hope to always keep my perspective, learning and sharing what I learn as I go. Personally, I am very proud to know that within easy driving distance (Crestview), first-rate, locally distilled spirits are being produced at Peaden Brothers and Timber Creek. And cheers to the local bars and liquor stores that stock their product.

As always, my family and I enjoyed good eats this year. Once again there were some finds, some places I wish I'd discovered years ago, and some more places I hope will survive and flourish. Looking back at all the wonderful area restaurants I've dined at over the years—the reviewed and the unreviewed—it's discouraging to consider how few are still around. Here are some highlights.

Landmark Event of the Year. My daughter Grace (the Tiny Diner) ordered on her own from a server for the first time.

Longest Meal. My lunch with TD on Airstream Row. Those Seaside Frisbee games...

Favorite Beverage. The Old Fashioned made with Bulleit Rye, cane syrup and a Luxardo cherry, at Trebeache in Redfish Village. Such drinks could lure me away from martinis.

Favorite Appetizer. Trebeache served an outstanding crispy duck lettuce wrap. Big enough to share, it was (as I wrote), "leg and breast, perfectly cooked, juicy and lush without being fatty." The shredded mirliton slaw was perfect. LuLu's Lower Alabama Caviar—black-eyed peas, chopped onions and sweet peppers in vinaigrette—was also addictive. Boshamps' Oysters Bienville with shrimp and lump crab gets a Very Honorable Mention.

Favorite Main Course. There were so many contenders—Tommy Mattonie's smoked meatloaf, Brotula's mustard-and-beer boiled mussels and shrimp, the pompano with baby bok choy at Trebeache, Barefoot BBQ's brisket sliders, Stewby's shockingly inexpensive fried calamari, Burrito del Sol's super shrimp tacos, and Boshamps' swordfish. This is a close one, but the pompano won by a nose (or maybe a gill).

Favorite Dessert. The pistachio crème brûlée and strawberry glaçage at Trebeache. To quote myself, the glaçage "manages to be both homey and elegant. The crème brûlée was just plain outstanding—crunchy, creamy, nutty and garnished with a pair of sugar-dusted biscotti." I also loved the warm triple berry tart at Mother Earth's Cafe, the lemon cream cake at Chanticleer, and Tommy Mattonie's key lime crepe. God bless all restaurants that use real whipped cream.

Favorite Restaurant of 2016. I can't say I ate a bad meal at any of them. I'd gladly go back to all of them. But based on the above categories, I have to say it was Trebeache. From start to finish—atmosphere, service, bar, app, mains and dessert—there were no missteps. Special thanks to our server Courtney, whose kindness and demeanor brought forth TD's best manners while we dined.

Find of the Year. Stewby's Seafood Shanty—fresh, delicious, affordable.

Place I Wish I'd Been Eating at for Years. See previous paragraph.

On behalf of myself, the TD, and our pals at The Beachcomber, Happy New Year and we'll see you in the dining room.

Armagnac – Drink Like a Musketeer

By Bruce Collier

Armagnac isn't that well known outside of France where, at age 700, it is the oldest brandy distilled in that country. Though exported worldwide, unlike its superstar cousin Cognac, Armagnac sales are pretty limited.

Armagnac takes its name from the place where it is distilled. Armagnac is located in the southwest of France, in the region known as Gascony—home of Cyrano de Bergerac, D'Artagnan (the Fourth Musketeer), and foie gras, that fatty, luxurious, un-PC goose and duck liver so evocative of classic French gastronomy. Truffles come from there as well.

Armagnac comes from three principal districts (appellations)—Bas-Armagnac, Armagnac-Tenerezze, and Haut-Armagnac. Bas-Armagnac seems to be the most commonly available, at least where I looked.

Armagnac is eau-de-vie ("water of life," which is also what "whisky" means). It is distilled from a blend of white wine grapes—the main ones are Ugni blanc, Folle blanche, Columbard and a disease-resistant hybrid called Baco 22A. Unlike Cognac, which is distilled twice, Armagnac is distilled only once, in a column still, at around 104 proof (52 percent alcohol). It is aged in oak barrels of differing varieties, local preferred. Most Armagnac is bottled at around 80 proof, though there are higher-proof bottlings.

There are six general classifications, based on time spent aging in the barrel. VS is at least two years old, VSOP at least four, XO and Napoleon at least six, Hors d'Age at least 10, and Armagnac of a vintage year. The age refers to that of the youngest Armagnac in the blend.

From its creation, Armagnac enjoyed a high reputation, especially in the Catholic Church. A 14th century French priest, Prior Vital DuFour (later a cardinal) listed the "forty virtues" of Armagnac. He said it healed wounds, restored paralyzed limbs (with massage), and cured both gout and hepatitis (not likely, but tell that to a French cardinal).

If Cognac is the Scotch whisky of France, Armagnac would probably be the bourbon. Its image is that of country, small batch artisan production, family tradition. With a touch of musketeer swagger.

I try to buy locally for these articles, but this time I had to range afield to find Armagnac. I bought one locally, four from an online liquor dealer, and one from a department store in Paris last year. Prices ranged from the mid-$30 to mid-$70 range. All were from Bas-Armagnac.

I tried all of these neat, in a Glencairn glass.

TARIQUET VSOP

80 Proof

$42.99 (Found Locally)

The nose is mild, with a touch of sweet-and-sour sauce. The taste is sweet—grapes, sherry, cream and vanilla. Both fruitiness and body become fuller with airing. It is warming, peppery, with notes of fruit peel, banana, wood, butter, pears and honey.

MARIE DUFFAU NAPOLEON

80 Proof

$34.96

The nose is toasty, with a sherry-like nuttiness ("rancio"). The taste is grape soda, sherry and whipped cream. With air you get raisins, figs and concentrated fruit preserves, caramel and fruit sauce. There is no burn, just lushness and warmth. It was the cheapest I tried, and a great value.

DARTIGALONGUE, XO

80 Proof

$56.99

Reportedly 10 years old, this one's nose comes on strong, with ripe pears, candied fruit, fig preserves, sweet apple juice and fig bars. The taste is lighter and drier than the nose promises, with spice, pepper and canned peaches. The finish is short.

TARIQUET CASK STRENGTH

102 Proof

Around $63.99

I bought this in Paris. It's unusual, not only because of the higher proof, but also because it's made exclusively from Folle blanche grapes. Folle blanche reportedly is used for its aroma. This one is all about the nose—canned fruit in syrup, toasty toffee. After an hour I could smell overripe peaches and nectarines. The taste is on the dry side, with that distinctive nuttiness predominating. There's warmth, but no burn.

CHATEAU DE LAUBADE HORS D'AGE

(Minimum 10 Years Old)

80 Proof

$49.96

There's no age statement ("intemporel" or "timeless"). The color had a pinkish tinge, like a dark rosé wine, in contrast to the rich browns of the others. The nose is earthy, almost funky, like soil. The taste is less fruity, drier, more austere and woody. There's that Spanish rancio again, with subtle raisin and fig notes on the finish. This was the driest Armagnac I tasted. It would make a great aperitif.

DELORD (25 Years Old)

80 Proof

$74.99

I had great expectations for this one, so I let it breathe about five hours before I sampled it. It's deep brown, like rum. The nose is pure dried fruit—raisins, figs, then warmed honey and sweet cured tobacco. The taste is sweet and full-bodied, with heat and some fire, which smoothes down to a low smolder. It's a regular dessert cart—jam, fruit and nut, vanilla and almond pastry, even some chutney and garam masala. This one is for the fireplace, the leather books and the deep thoughts.

Seventeen Places to Check Out While You Ring in '17

By Joni Williams

Are your New Year's Eve plans the same as your old year's? Are you looking to break free of that Auld Lang grind? You came to the right place, friends. We have suggestions galore for where to go and what to do that are sure to shake up your routine and practically guarantee good times in the New Year and beyond.

DIY Dive Crawl. Forget the stereotype of a dark, seedy bar with questionable character. That's so 20th century. There's no better place to find happy times—or the cackle of a karaoke machine—than at a dive bar.

The best place to launch your own personalized dive crawl is Downtown FoWal. In a half-mile stretch, you can find at least a half-dozen dives, pubs, brew halls and taverns, including Coasters, where cheap drinks rule, and the Salty Duck, where it's literally all fun and games—everything from billiards to beer pong. They have a stellar selection of brews, too.

But why stop with two? Other crawl-worthy pubs in the area include Fokker's, home of the loaded "Mother Fokker" pizza and killer happy hours, Props Brewery, KC's and The Boardroom. Need more? Head into nearby Destin where you'll find a bevy of dives and cozy bars like Lucky's Rotten Apple, The Red Door Saloon and Duck Duck.

HarborWalk Street Party. If you do end up in Destin, be sure to hit the Harbor where they'll wrap 2016 with none other than a street party. Think about it. How often do you get to go to a street party in the land of overrun streets and jam-packed traffic snarls? Flow Tribe kicks off the party at 7 p.m., followed by the Journey cover band Departure at 10.

But wait, there's more. 2016 will go out with a bang, literally, with two fireworks shows, the first at 8 and a midnight finale featuring a sparkly ball drop. Admission is FREE.

Dave and Buster's, Pier Park, Panama City Beach.

If barhopping isn't your scene but gaming is, D&B is the place to be on New Year's Eve. Up for grabs are a couple of sweet package deals starting at $47.99 that include dinner and dessert buffets, gaming "power cards," college football on the tube and reserved VIP seating for an optimal view of Pier Park's ball drop. You can upgrade the package to include a drink ticket, or just belly up to the bar on your own.

If you fancy yourself a honky tonk woman or man, Pier Park is also where you'll find the one and only sister location of the world famous Tootsies. And it's the only place in the Panhandle with a weather forecast of snow. But it's Pier Park, not Mother Nature, that is once again bringing snow to the beach for the holidays.

Mardi Gras Ball, The Village Door, Baytowne Wharf. Owner John Wehner isn't going to Bourbon Street for New Year's Eve, he's bringing it to Baytowne. The Village Door will welcome 2017 New Orleans style by hosting a Mardi Gras ball, complete with live music and light-up beads. The $25 cover charge gets you FREE drinks from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. and a champagne toast at midnight.

Head east to The Red Bar in Grayton Beach, which has a longtime reputation for putting the happy in New Year's (and just about every other day of the year, too). Nearby is newcomer Chiringo, fast becoming a preferred gathering spot for its cheerful ambience and food and drinks with Spanish flair.

Grande Gala, Emerald Grande. Trade your flip-flops for heels and your tees for ties, and make like Cinderella and Prince Charming. For a price that starts at $125 plus tax, you'll be given the royal treatment with a chef-selected dinner, dancing to live music, and a champagne toast at midnight. The glorious view you'll have of the ball dropping over the moonlit Destin Harbor is, of course, priceless.

HEALTHY DINING

GEORGE'S AT ALYS BEACH Established in 2008, George's has offered regional coastal fare infused with global flavors to the quaint town of Alys Beach. We craft all of our dishes using locally sourced organic produce and the freshest seafood available, and present each with a generous helping of love. Our dishes fall into two categories—Behave and Misbehave. The Behave section features organic, spa-inspired dishes, while the Misbehave side touts traditional beach fare like fried seafood baskets and po-boys. The menu is rounded out with a thoughtfully curated wine list and a selection of decadent desserts. Our charming beach cottage provides the perfect backdrop for a casual dinner with friends and family. Dine indoors in our airy yet cozy dining room, or soak in the beautiful Florida sunshine on our front deck or screened porches. Open 11 a..-3 p.m. and 5-9 p.m. 30 Castle Harbour Dr., Panama City Beach, 850-641-0017, georgesatalysbeach.net.

FAVORITE TV COOKING SHOWS

The ones I watched growing up—Justin Wilson, Jacques Pepin, Julia Child.

CULINARY IDOLS

I wouldn't say I idolize anyone, but Emeril Lagasse is definitely an influence. I gain the most inspiration from cooking and talking with my great staff, current and past.

GUILTY PLEASURE

Chicken nuggets from McDonald's.

SIGNATURE DISH

It would have to be the often imitated but never duplicated cast iron seated filet mignon cooked in duck fat.

MAJOR ACCOMPLISHMENT

That would have to be marrying my best friend and the love of my life on December 12 of this year.

Bartender of the Issue

Kevin Burke

Hog's Breath Saloon, Destin

We can't remember a time when we didn't see Kevin pouring at our favorite drinking spot, but it turns out the guy's only been there since April 2013. Before that, he lived in Orlando and "fixed problems" for the TGIFriday's chain.

He says the most popular libation at the Breath is the Running Hog, a variation on the Rum Runner. Kevin's own go-to drink is Jim Beam and Coke. One thing his time behind bars has taught him is "how to be more patient with people."

Hobbies include barhopping (can probably write that off as research on your 1040, Kev), movies, the beach ("anything outdoors"), camping, and four-wheeling up in Alabama.

This Christmas, he'll travel back to Orlando to spend some time with his mom and the rest of the family. But come New Year's Eve, you'll likely find him working (and playing) hard, to the delight of the Hog's Breath regulars.

Kevin's wish for 2017? "A better year than 2016," he says soberly. "It can always be better."

Gaming – Old Is New Again and Hard to Find

By Nikki Hedrick

As videogames evolve with astounding graphics and complex story lines, nostalgia and collectors are driving an altogether different market.

In November, Nintendo released the NES Classic, a smaller version of the original Nintendo complete with 30 preloaded games. It sold out faster than anyone was prepared for, helping solidify that a growing, hungry market for older games and console systems exists.

Joe Alonzo, owner of Fort Walton Beach-based Rad Junk, understands the desire for classic video gaming better than most.

"It is driving sales of original hardware," says Alonzo of the NES Classic. "Because the thing is so hard to find, the supply was so limited and demand was so high, and because people miss that tangibility of holding a cartridge in their hands, it has increased awareness and visibility of the retro market."

It isn't a cost prohibitive jump either, with stores like Alonzo's sending customers out the door with the original Nintendo consoles and a couple extra games for under the $100 price point.

The NES Classic isn't the only animal that created an additional drive towards retro gaming in 2016. "I think the retro stuff was already gaining some momentum early this year, but when Pokémon Go came out...I have never seen anything go as crazy as that did." Alonzo shares that everyone seemed to want to "catch them all," from casual players to longtime fans of the franchise. He dubs it "a revolving door of Pokémon madness," as demand for older Pokémon games continues to rise.

Retro stores like Rad Junk offer additional services—replacing pin connectors and cleaning both consoles and games to prolong their life spans. "We are dealing with a finite supply," he says.

Alonzo is also quick to dispel the myth that blowing into a cartridge is a good idea, as it can cause buildup on the metal connectors and affect a game's ability to play properly in the long run.

As some games become rare, their prices are driven up and fakes begin to appear on the market. "From a collector's standpoint you want the real deal. You want the real cartridge. Some of the games are getting really pricy, so we are seeing an influx of those higher end titles being reproduced heavily."

But Alonzo isn't necessarily opposed to reproductions of hard-to-find titles, "If it is clearly labeled as a reproduction, I have no problem, because at the end of the day that's what we all want to do. Just get our hands on games that we want to play and have fun."

To spot a fake, Alonzo suggests looking for a difference in how the plastic feels. Reproductions often use cheaper materials. Labels can be another signal that a deal is too good to be true, with coloring or depth of the image missing the mark from the original printing.

"Ultimately, the best way to figure out you have a fake is to get a 'game bit,' a little screw driver that fits into the security bit on the back of cartridges," says Alonzo. "Open it up and look at the board and Google it. If there is any difference in the configuration, it is likely a fake."

Rad Junk features consoles and games from the Odyssey 2000 (which birthed a tennis game that I'll always refer to as Pong) to the latest generation of consoles like the PlayStation 4. They also carry a selection of videogame themed gifts, and host monthly trade nights and weekly retro gaming tournaments.

The Bucket List

By Paula Hilton

It's 2017 and time to pull out that pesky list of New Year's Resolutions I made last year. You probably have the same list somewhere, right? Tucked safely away so you won't lose it. Or look at it.

I did look at mine a few times this past year, and at one point got out a pen and started marking through things that I decided I really didn't need to accomplish in 2016. I mean, why "clean out the filing cabinet in the garage"? The thing has been sitting there since 2002 with nothing but junk in it. It could certainly stay put another year or two.

The rest of the list wasn't much better. "Lose 20 more pounds." I've already lost 40, thank you very much. Let it be for goodness sakes.

"Learn how to use a power saw." For lack of a better word, I suffer from power-saw-a-phobia. I'm terrified of power saws. There was no way I'd ever learn how to use one.

"Teach old dogs new tricks." I adopted two adult dogs in July of 2015 and quickly realized they didn't know any basic commands. Sit! I bark. They stare at me, standing. Roll over, I ask. More staring. Quit barking! No way. They were born to bark.

After taking a long look and realizing I really didn't accomplish much in 2016, I decided to take a new approach. I turned 60 in 2015, and I noticed a lot of my friends were starting to talk about their "bucket lists." Maybe I should make a bucket list instead of a list of New Year's resolutions. That sounded like more fun anyway, so I started my list.

Or thought I was going to start my list. I couldn't think of anything to put down. I'm afraid of heights so all those things like "jump out of an airplane," "go parasailing" or "visit Mars" that other people put on their lists weren't really feasible. I've already sung in front of 10,000 people, been on TV and written a book. I know how to sew, crotchet and play the clarinet, so I probably don't need to learn another instrument.

But I could learn another language. I've always thought French was quite lovely. And maybe take a serious painting class. And go to the beach.

Wait a minute. Where did that come from? Go to the beach? I live in Beachcomberland, with the most beautiful beaches in the world. But when is the last time I went to the beach? It might have been before I moved here in 2002. Back then, every time we came out for a visit, we spent days and days at the beach.

But since moving here, I just float around in my pool, or go out on my sister's 40-foot pontoon where we enjoy the water but we don't "go to the beach."

I looked at the other stuff on my bucket list. You know, I doubt I could learn a new language or how to paint. I am, after all, an old dog, and you really can't teach an old dog new tricks. But go to the beach here on the beautiful Emerald Coast? Now that's something I can get behind. Our beautiful warm weather will be back in just a few short months. Maybe I will work on taking a few more pounds off, then hit the beach in style.

Happy New Year, everyone!

It's unclear whether it was Pitbull or tourism officials who demanded that his contract fee remain confidential. Labeling it "proprietary" undoubtedly irked lawmakers such as Corcoran, already skeptical of Visit Florida's budget.

After Pitbull signed on, he went right to work. His promotional efforts included a hype-rich Miami Beach video for his "Sexy Beaches" single, and a live concert from Bayfront Park for a national TV audience on New Year's Eve.

Over several months, he also posted Visit Florida's LoveFL hashtag on Twitter and Instagram. According to the Orlando Sentinel, the rap star promoted sun and fun in Florida 17 times to his many millions of followers on social media.

When Visit Florida's Seccombe raved about Pitbull's tourism impact, he used Trumpian extremes such as "huge," "incredible" and "extraordinary."

Those same words would probably also apply to the size of Pitbull's paycheck. We don't know for sure, because it's a state secret.

FRESH SEAFOOD?

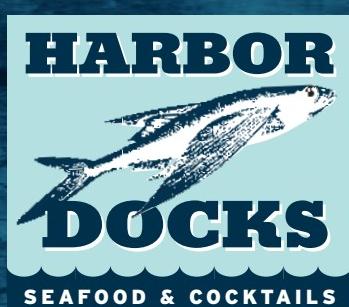

One of the first questions people ask when they visit our area is "How can we be sure we're getting fresh seafood?"

That's an excellent question. There is a good chance that the seafood you will be offered traveled farther than you did. In the state of Florida, even though we are surrounded by water, more than 90% of the seafood sold this year will be imported from other countries.

Throughout the United States, the huge majority of seafood is imported. Most of it is mislabeled. Frozen seafood is sold as "fresh" and imported seafood is sold as "local." According to Oceana, 93% of fish sold as red snapper is actually some other species. 57% of tuna sold at sushi bars throughout the country is not tuna. Most of the tilapia served in this country comes from Viet Nam and Thailand and much of it is farmed in waters with sewage run-off and the source of feed is pig feces.

Harbor Docks has been selling fish through its wholesale market since 1981. We sell to markets across the United States and Canada. We also sell to select restaurants along the Gulf Coast. Harbor Docks contracts with over 100 commercial boats to insure that we have an adequate supply of fresh fish.

We invite you to dine at our restaurants – Harbor Docks, in the heart of Destin, and Camille's, overlooking the Gulf in Crystal Beach. But we'd also encourage you to try any of the wonderful, independent, local restaurants in our area that are committed to serving Florida seafood. We know who they are, because we sell them their fish.

Check our website to find out which restaurants sell certified Gulf-to-Table fish from Harbor Docks Seafood Market.
